

In-house Training

The ILFM offers in-house training on any of the topics covered in ILFM training. In-house training can be a cost-effective method of training groups of staff and finance personnel in familiar surroundings as well as a saving by avoiding travelling costs and time. This training is more productive for a firm as it gives delegates the opportunity to discuss issues in relation to the firm and its requirements, offering a confidential learning environment as well as delivering a consistent firm wide message. The tutor(s) will be on hand to advise on specific questions and scenarios. Discussing as a group raises awareness and quickens the learning process amongst colleagues and senior management.

We can also tailor our in-house training to cover bespoke areas in legal accounting and management. Our expert trainers will tailor the training to the firm's requirements and can cover particular areas e.g. systems, procedures, advice on areas of compliance etc.

Our fees are simple and offer value without the disruption of sending staff out to external providers.

Terms and Conditions apply.
